INVITATION TEXT

Dear Designer,

As known, March 8, International Women's Day makes a difference regarding the place and importance of women in society, based on the idea that universal women's rights must advance through their social, political and cultural success. March 8, International Women's Day was celebrated for the first time in the world in 1909 and in our country in 1921. International Women's Day, which became an official structure with the admission of United Nations in 1975, proceeds to be celebrated every year in the world and in our country.

International Women's Day, having a significant place in the history regarding the place and importance of women's rights in society, is defined as a day to think women as pioneers in society and to celebrate their social and cultural achievements rather than a day to glorify or tolerate them.

As Görece Faculty of Fine Arts, Department of Graphic Design, we aspire to reveal the inspiring power of women in society with our exhibition themed "Inspiring Women". Throughout history, women's strong, persistent, promising, successful and adventurous journeys have been subjects to stories. Because a woman's strength is big enough to inspire the whole society. Women who inspire us are scientists, business people, artists, writers, pilots and several other heroes of thousands of stories full of success and hope.

...and most importantly our mothers... Women struggling in life, raising us, being strong, knowing how to stand and teaching us to stay strong...

Our purpose in "Inspiring Women" exhibition is not only to reveal a strong female character in history or to create a strong female image but also to tell the stories of the women struggling in life and shedding light onto the future.

We believe that your participation in our exhibition with your designs on women that you wish to share in line with the theme of "Inspiring Women" will make this day even more meaningful...
